The national committees conducting the second phase of the International Statistical Literacy Competition of the ISLP in their countries

Juana Sanchez, ISLP Director

The second (national) phase of the International Statistical Literacy Competition where the finalists of phase I compete against each other. The outcome will be the choice of a national champion in each of the school levels participating that will compete against other countries during the final in Durban, South Africa, August 20th, 2009.

The second phase is managed and executed by national committees of experts in statistical literacy headed by members of the ISLP advisory board. These committees will be conducting their competitions before the end of March. We list them below. The coordination of the teachers and students in their countries; the design of the competition questions; the arrangement of a venue for execution and supervision and their work seeking sponsors to support the travel of the winners to South Africa in August; all those aspects of phase 2 constitute a huge amount of work. ## The missing variable in Statistics Education studies. Do Educational Facilities matter?

Does the planning and design of educational facilities – schools, colleges and universities – impact learning? The OECD Program on Educational Building (PEB) promotes the exchange and analysis of policy, research and experience in all matters related to educational building. A recent publication of this organism studies the impact of the buildings on learning, reaching very interesting conclusions. The publication costs $, like many OECD publications, but by looking at the web side you may get a glimpse at the best school buildings around the world. ## The UK has new data handling tools

By Neville Davies

A beta version of our data interrogation tool is at www.experimentsatschool.ntu.ac.uk/datatool/datatool.swf. You will be dynamically sampling live from our databases.

We are also about to launch our new free resource, which comprise 9 chapters on doing stats with IT. Have a look at www.censusatschool.ntu.ac.uk/engagingstats.html

You will see in the book featured in the last link the word Autograph. For those not familiar with it, Autograph is the best selling school-level software for maths and stats in the UK. But you might want to have a look at the software. You can download a 30-day time-bombed version from the web site. <http://www.autograph-maths.com/>. Teachers in the UK like the software because it does so much dynamic maths as well.

Seminar on Innovative Approaches to Turn Statistics into Knowledge, July 15-16, 2009, Washington D.C. (USA)

USCENSUSBUREAU
Helping You Make Informed Decisions

The OECD and the US Census Bureau are jointly organising this seminar, which will take place in the headquarters of the US Census Bureau, located in Suitland, Maryland, just outside of Washington DC.

The purpose of the seminar is to contribute to the development of tools to help people transform statistics into knowledge and decisions. A first condition for statistics to be used this way is that relevant statistics become known, available, and understood by wider audiences.

You can read more about the seminar, propose a presentation and apply for participation at www.oecd.org/progress/ict/statknowledge
